

HUGHES DRAFTED MUSCLE SHOALS PRIVATE CONTRACT, WITNESS ASSERTS

W. G. Waldo Testifies He Was Told New Yorker Acted as Attorney for Cyanamid Co. in This.

DENIES KNOWING OF $65,000 FEE

G. O. P. Chairman Huston as Lobbyist, Sent $156,441 to Washington, Audit Discloses.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Testimony that Charles Evans Hughes, whose confirmation as Chief Justice of the United States is before the Senate, drew up the proposed contract whereby Muscle Shoals would be turned over to the American Cyanamid Co., was presented to day to the Senate Lobby Committee.

Legislation is now before Congress to accept the Cyanamid Co.'s bid for the Shoals power and nitrate plant.

W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, was on the stand today and a memorandum written by him read before this committee said he had been informed by J. O. Hanna, vice president of the Cyanamid Co., that Hughes had drawn up the contract.

The memorandum purported to be a record of a telephone conversation with C. A. Dyer, of Columbian, executive agent of the National Grange.

Teal of Memorandum.

The memorandum said: "J. O. H. says: Have had contract drawn by one of the very best constitutional lawyers in the country—Charles Evans Hughes. Believe it to be thoroughly sound constitutionally and not subject to cancellation on the grounds of confiscation."

Chairman Caraway asked if Hughes had not received $65,000 for drawing up the contract, but the witness said he did not know.

The memorandum added: "If the farm organizations wish to adopt any changes regarding priority in delivery of fertilizer for fertilizer manufacturers or others we would be glad to adopt it."

The memorandum concluded with a statement that J. W. Worthington, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, which had advocated the Cyanamid bid, would have to be consulted before any decision was reached about the fertilizer.

Queried about the memorandum, Waldo said C. A. Dyer, legislative agent of the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation at Columbus, Ga., had telephoned the Cyanamid company to ascertain if certain proposals he advocated would be adopted and was given the information contained in the memorandum.

Contract Embodiment in Bill.

The contract which Hughes drew up, Waldo said, was embodied in the Madden bill which was before Congress several months ago and now is contained in the Wright bill, which would accept the Cyanamid bid for the nitrate and power plant at Muscle Shoals.

Waldo also testified that he had prepared material for "a great many" members of Congress which was used in speeches substantially as he had written it. Pressed to name the members of Congress, he mentioned only one—Representative Almon (Dem.), Alabama. Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, charged him with being unfriendly with Almon, but this was denied by Waldo.

An audit showing that Claudius H. Huston, then treasurer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, and now chairman of the Republican National Committee, paid $156,441 to the Washington office of the association between January, 1929, and February, 1930, was examined yesterday by the committee.

Huston later became president of the association and resigned a short time before he became chairman of the Republican National Committee a few months ago. The lobby committee expects to question him in its investigation of persons interested in Muscle Shoals legislation.

The audit was examined while the committee was questioning Waldo. Waldo said he understood the audit had been prepared under the direction of Huston.

Senator Walsh, (Dem.) Montana, who questioned the witness about the audit, said it showed that J. W. Worthington, chairman of the Executive Committee of the association, received $20,000 during the two years.

Waldo asserted this was merely an "allowance" for Worthington who used all the money for the work of the association. He said yesterday that Worthington did not receive a "doggone cent."

"Worthington Always Broke." Asked how he knew that Worthington did not receive any money, Waldo said: "I know that because

"Our party has learned with deepest gratitude of the tender of appointment from the President of the whaling association. We feel that it is peculiarly significant that the countrymen of the stout-hearted and lamented Amundsen, whom I knew and admired, should ready stand to assist us should we call upon them."

To the British Foreign Office Byrd said in part:

"It naturally gratifies us very much to be aware of the friendly concern of the nation of Scott, Shackleton, Marconi and Evans, those distinguished sons of the Antarctic, drawn from us the most friendly and profound admiration of their leadership and abilities."

"While we are not yet keenly apprehensive about our predicament, which is potentially quite serious, I am naturally attempting to leave nothing, nothing that will insure the safety of my men. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Physicians attending William Howard Taft said today in their noon bulletin that "the general condition of the former Chief Justice continues to improve."

Fire engines stood in front of the Taft home today with their engines cut off and their sirens silent, and proceeded as quietly as possible to extinguish a fire across the street.

The blaze was a small one in the chimney of the home of Lieutenant-Commander John H. Magruder.

Walsh also said the audit showed that $102,320 was advanced to Worthington between April, 1929, and February, 1932, and that a balance of $3864 was due Worthington in February, 1932.

Chairman Caraway today received a telegram from Worthington, which said he would leave Taft Springs, Tenn., tomorrow for Washington to testify before the committee.

Caraway had charged Worthington with dodging the committee by saying he was ill. The committee wants to question him concerning his activities in regard to Muscle Shoals.

Worthington's telegram said: "In response to your telegram and in view of your statement about my physical condition, and though contrary to medical advice, I shall leave tomorrow for Washington."

FOX'S REFINANCING PLAN IS REJECTED HERE IN INQUIRY BY TWO CREDITORS

Judge Says Unless Proposal Is Accepted or Another Submitted Receiver Will Be Named.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Federal Judge Coleman today adjourned the Fox Film Corporation receivership hearing to permit submission of the plan of refinancing proposed by Fox to the stockholders. Unless this plan were approved, or another submitted which will meet with the Court's approval, he said, receivers would be appointed.

Attorneys representing Halsey, Stuart & Co. and the Electric Research Products Corporation, large creditors of the Fox Film Corporation, informed the Court that stockholders would not cancel the contract which gave them the right to handle all Fox financing for 15 years, which was entered into at the time the Halsey Stuart firm sold the debenture bond issue which becomes due shortly.

Attorney for Electrical Research Products expressed objection to the plan on the ground that the Fox Corporation already was in default on royalties of over $400,000.

Counsel for Halsey, Stuart & Co. informed the Court that stockholders would not cancel the contract which gave them the right to handle all Fox financing for 15 years, which was entered into at the time the Halsey Stuart firm sold the debenture bond issue which becomes due shortly.

Attorney for Electrical Research Products expressed objection to the plan on the ground that the Fox Corporation already was in default on royalties of over $400,000.

Counsel for a group of class A stockholders which filed one of the receivership suits based their objection on the ground that the heavy cost of the financing proposed would dilute the rights of that stock.

Attorneys for Mrs. Susie Dryden Kusler of Summerset, N. J., the second largest holder of the Class B voting stock, which is controlled by Fox, said that while his client preferred the refinancing plan to receivership, despite obvious disadvantages of the plan, Mrs. Kusler had filed suit for receivership.

11 MEN ARRESTED HERE IN INQUIRY IN GANG MURDERS

Five St. Louisans, Six Kansas Cityans Held as Police Reopen Investigation of Palmisano Case.

ONE SUSPECTED IN THREE MORE KILLINGS
Matt Manzello Disappeared After Head of Longo Fruit Co. Had Been Shot Two Years Ago at Store.

With the arrest of five St. Louisans and six Kansas Cityans, police have reopened investigation of the murder of Charles Palmisano, wealthy wholesale fruit dealer, and are inclined to believe that they may have prevented attempts at vengeance.

Acting on confidential information, Carr Street police early today completed a series of arrests begun yesterday. The prize capture was Matt Manzello, 30 years old, sought for more than two years.

Manzello will be viewed by witnesses in the killing of Palmisano, president of the M. Longo Fruit Co., Third street and Franklin avenue shot down in his doorway the morning of Nov. 19, 1927. That night Samuel and Robert Aiello were murdered, presumably by the same men, in Springfield, Ill. They are related by marriage to Willie Hanks, St. Louis gang leader.

Capt. Frank Nally of the Carr Street District said he had received information which justified questioning Manzello, whose license and the case of Joseph Constanza, shot to death in an automobile in front of 1417 Blair avenue, Sept. 22, 1926. Manzello disappeared from St. Louis and was reported to have made connections at Chicago, Detroit and Bendix, Ill., returning to St. Louis a few days ago when his associates at Bendix were indicted in a moonshining conspiracy.

"Bendix" said Manzello. "Never heard of it. I've been in New York since."

His arrest was followed by that of Frank Agrusa, notorious gunman, and Joseph Vitale. Agrusa shrugged his shoulders and said when questioned: "It's good to be under the lights—I'm glad to be here," from which it was inferred he considered his life in danger, particularly with so many visitors in the Agrusa and Manzello police say, formerly were in the pay of Al Capone, Chicago gang leader.

Eight Caught in Autos.
At 12 o'clock this morning police halted two automobiles at Tenth street and Cass avenue and arrested the occupants. Two were St. Louisans, Michael and Frank Russo, who were described as cousins of Willie Russo, but denied by him. The other two, also partly arrested, all giving Kansas City as their addresses, are Leo James and Frank Palma, whose relationship, if any, to the murdered Charles Palmisano, was not learned, and Richard Viterino, Carl Orlando and Sam Calafatino.

"We came to St. Louis to watch the Primo Carrera fight, at the Arca Tuesday night and stayed over to see the sights and buy some souvenirs for the kids back home," said the visitors.

All the prisoners denied knowledge of gang murders or any law violations.

all over the country, who once had thought prohibition was needed to bring about temperance but now had found that prohibition had resulted in a worse condition.

Her hands shook as she denounced politicians who, she said, were personally wet but who responded to the whip of the Anti-Saloon League and the Methodist Temperance to vote dry.

Numerous times she was engaged with the committee rebuked by the committee for what he described as an unnecessary demonstration.

She said the women thought they could make prohibition as strong as the Constitution but instead have made the Constitution as weak as prohibition.

Appliance greeted this statement.

Rise of Criminal Class.

Mrs. Sabin argued that, the women of the land had seen what she had been described as a moral reform, "debauching public private life," adding:

They have seen a steady increase in crime, which has necessitated the President of the United States to take steps to the creation of a new Federal penitentiary, and in New York State, the Governor has asked for $80,000 for new State prisons.

They have seen the rise of an organized criminal class engaged in a most profitable, non-tax paying business, providing the prohibited to millions of otherwise law-abiding citizens.

While the old-time corner saloon has closed, Mrs. Sabin said, we still have them in far worse

Held in Florida With Pastor

TO RETURN EVANGELIST AND TWO ALTON GIRLS

Deputy Sheriff on Way to Florida Where Pastor Is Held for Abduction.

The Rev. A. L. Shoemaker, former pastor of the Edwards Street Pentecostal Mission in Alton, arrested Tuesday night at Lakeland, Fla., on a fugitive warrant charging abduction of two young women members of the Alton congregation, will return Saturday. It was reported by Assistant State's Attorney L. H. Streeter of Alton following a telephone conversation with Florida authorities. A deputy sheriff is on his way to Alton to answer any charge which may be made against him.

The Rev. Mr. Shoemaker was arrested as he shook hands with his congregation at the close of a tent revival service, and the young women, Annette Harris and Edith Hankins, each 20 years old, were detained by the Lakeland Welfare Department.

Florida authorities informed Streeter that the women were living in a Lakeland apartment with the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker, representing themselves as his daughters.

Under the Illinois law, enticing an unmarried woman from her home constitutes abduction, punishable by imprisonment from one to 10 years, Streeter said. Complaints were made by the parents of Miss Hankins, an elevator operator, and by Miss Hankins' father, Samuel Hankins, for whom she kept house.

The pastor and the two girls left their respective homes in Alton last Oct. 1, the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker telling his wife, whom he left with two small children, that he was going to visit his father at Creel Springs, Ill., and that he would send for her later. The young women were traced to Granite City where they went in a taxicab. The pastor had called at their homes before the fire.

Mr. Shoemaker has rented rooms of her house to support the children, not having heard from his husband.

Before going to Lakeland, the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker had conducted revival meetings at Tampa and Winter Haven, Fla.

Both the pastor and the two girls were members of a saxophone quartet at the Alton church.

form—unregulated and uncontrolled.

"I refer," she continued, "what might be called the co-educational speakeasy. In pre-prohibition days mothers had little to fear in regard to the saloon as far as their children were concerned. A saloon keeper's license was revoked if he were caught selling liquor to minors."

Youth Turns to Liquor.
"Today in any speakeasy in the United States one may find young boys and girls drinking liquor, poisonous or nonpoisonous. The youth of our nation is rapidly acquiring a taste for hard liquor."

"Bendix" said Manzello. "Never heard of it. I've been in New York since."

His arrest was followed by that of Frank Agrusa, notorious gunman, and Joseph Vitale. Agrusa shrugged his shoulders and said when questioned: "It's good to be under the lights—I'm glad to be here," from which it was inferred he considered his life in danger, particularly with so many visitors in the Agrusa and Manzello police say, formerly were in the pay of Al Capone, Chicago gang leader.

Mrs. Sabin said a recent report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. gave an increase of 600 per cent in deaths from alcoholism during the last four years among 19,000,000 industrial policy holders.

In concluding, she said, it was the opinion of her organization "that a political party which ignores the prohibition issue will eventually sink into oblivion."

Mr. David Holmes Morton of Brooklyn, N. Y., secretary of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, was the next witness. She said that she could not longer take the word of the Anti-Saloon League in this important matter," asserting that after the Jones law had become effective her organization had increased its membership by several hundred of women.

Wants Outright Repeal.
When she was questioned by Representative Sumners (Dem., Texas) as to how to go about the repeal she replied that she and the women of the country who realize the seriousness of the situation were not interested in the details of obtaining the repeal. She added she was sent to the committee meeting by them to demand its repeal in whatever way Congress could devise.

"We demand an outright, unequivocal repeal of the eighteenth amendment, free from modification, compromise or substitute," she declared. "We demand its repeal because the eighteenth amendment endangers the personal habits of the individual, an enterprise not properly the function of any Government and specifically denied to the Government of the United States by the provisions of the ninth and tenth articles of the bill of rights, without which there would have been no Constitution."

Mr. Morton declared, "We must accept the monstrous proposition set forward by the prohibitionists."

"Because we object," she said, "we are denounced as nullificationists, rebels and enemies of society, and even in the halls of Congress we are openly threatened with a declaration of war."

"We have no desire to evade any of the duties laid on us by the Constitution, but we refuse to be bully-ragged and browbeaten by a text out of the Mahometan Koran, which contains it is stated a constitutional amendment."

Mr. Morton endorsed the proposal of Mrs. Norton of New Jersey. She said that women desired a popular referendum on the eighteenth amendment.

"The time has come to go directly to the people," she said, "to determine whether they wish any further experimenting with the doctrines of Mormonism, or whether they wish to restore the bill of rights to the

INCREASE OF 2 OR 3 CENTS IN CITY TAX RATE PREDICTED

It Will Be Applied Entirely to Sinking Fund on the $87,372,500 Bond Issue—$1,300,000 Assessment Expected

An increase of either 2 or 3 cents in the city tax rate for 1930 was forecast today by Deputy Comptroller Gunn. It will be entirely to the sinking fund to meet the demands of the $87,372,500 bond issue of 1922. The amount of the increase will be determined by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment within a short time, after a better indication of the probable assessment for the year is available.

Isaac T. Cook, real estate dealer and receiver for the Bucking-ham Hotel Annex property, which was burned in December, 1927, with a loss of seven lives, testified in a deposition today that he had complete confidence in the integrity of Lewis E. Balson, former majority owner of the Bucking-ham, who is under $15,000 bond to answer any charge which may be made against him.

Mr. Cook expressed no opinion on the $100 valuation of the Annex property, which was $1,000,000 above the assessed value of $900,000.

Under the Illinois law, enticing an unmarried woman from her home constitutes abduction, punishable by imprisonment from one to 10 years, Streeter said. Complaints were made by the parents of Miss Hankins, an elevator operator, and by Miss Hankins' father, Samuel Hankins, for whom she kept house.

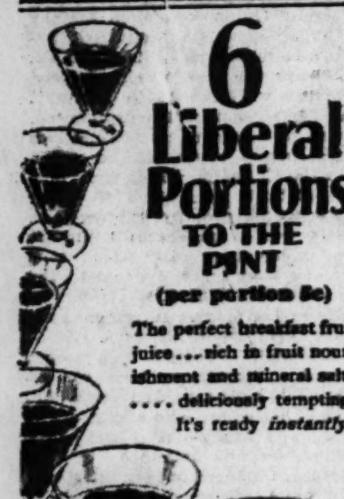

Mr. Cook testified that on one or two occasions before the fire he could have negotiated a profitable sale of the Annex property had it not been for the handicap of foreclosure proceedings instituted by mortgage holders.

He related that he saw Balson frequently before and after the fire, stating that Balson seemed to lose interest in the property about 30 days before the blaze, "like a dead fish in the water," he said. The receiver recalled that on one occasion, before the fire, he was staying at the Bucking-ham.

BORDER GUARD BEGUN

Widow Testifies Husband Was Stopping Auto When Patrolman Fired.

By the Associated Press.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 13.—Taking the stand as the State's principal witness, Mrs. Gust Henry Wirkkula today testified her husband was bringing his automobile to a halt when he was instantly killed by shots fired by Emmett J. White, United States customs patrolman, on trial for second degree murder in Federal Court here.

No resistance to search was offered by her husband, she said, asserting he believed he intended to halt in compliance with a cloth sign which said "Stop, U. S. Officers," last June 8, near Great Falls, Minn., 25 miles south of the Canadian border.

Speaking hesitatingly and with a foreign accent, Mrs. Wirkkula told the jury she and her husband had been on a brief outing excursion made by the family, including two children, and of its tragic end when only a short distance from home.

She saw the sign, which was lighted by flashlights, in the hands of the customs officers and mentioned it to her husband. He did not answer and as he was somewhat deaf, she said she thought he did not hear her, but that he was aware of the signal, in fact. Having lived in North Minnesota many years, she was well aware of the meaning of such a sign she said.

The car was traveling 10 or 15 miles an hour when she first saw the sign, she testified. As the car was slowing down, she heard voices and then shots. The car continued going ahead and then started into a ditch as her husband's body fell against her.

There was no liquor in the automobile, Mrs. Wirkkula testified. Shots fired by White, narrowly missed her and the two children, who were sleeping in the rear seat.

Mrs. Wirkkula was composed as she offered her testimony, but earlier, as O. J. Larson, special prosecutor for the State, mentioned her husband's name in his opening statement, she burst into tears and cried aloud. Proceedings were halted while court attendants took her to an ante-chamber.

Judge William A. Cant ordered that the jury be kept locked up during the trial, because of the feeling aroused over the killing, which has been made an issue by prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists.

The case provides a legal paradox in that the Federal District Attorney's office has taken over the defense of White who is being prosecuted by the State. Trial of the case was brought into Federal Court under an old statute establishing jurisdiction in the case of the customs employees indicted in State Courts.

Earlier, the jurors were asked whether they were opposed to the prohibition act and to laws prohibiting importation of intoxicating liquors and also whether they had ever had any difficulty with customs patrolmen when they crossed the Canadian border. Only one of those examined said he had no sympathy for the dry law. He was Horace Doty, Rochester, Minn., banker.

SHARTEL ORDERED TO AIR
CHARLESTON BANK INQUIRY

Governor Asks Him to Help Investigate Failure of State Depository.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—Gov. Caulfield has directed Attorney-General Sharrel to take part, in person or through one of his assistants, in the inquiry to be made by the Missouri County grand jury next week into the failure of the Bank of Charleston.

The bank was closed Jan. 2, after the State had presented a draft for $209,000 funds held by the bank as a State depository. A plan for re-opening it was dropped recently, and the State Finance Commissioner has ordered its assets liquidated. Edwin P. Deal, former State Treasurer, was president of the bank.

The Government's action was requested officially by G. C. Lee, Prosecuting Attorney of Missouri County. His letter to the Governor stated only that the aid of the Attorney-General's office was desired in investigating "special circumstances" connected with the bank failure.

She Has a Girl's Greatest Charm

"The most lasting thought in the heart of a man is a woman's dainty, clear complexion, soft arms and hands," says Mary Hart, who has been delighting St. Louis theatergoers in featured parts with the Arthur Casey Players at the Orpheum Theater. "My advice to any girl is to always keep her skin smooth and fresh. That's her greatest charm." It's so easy to do. You need no expensive facials, and takes just a second when you make a habit of using Vara Skin Balm (Egyptian Emollient) after you've finished washing your hands and face. Quickly, any wind-roughed skin is gone and the skin is so marvelously soft even your face powder will cling naturally without flaking. Vara Skin Balm costs only 5¢ at any department or drug store.

CONNIE MACK GETS $10,000 BOK PRIZE FOR PUBLIC MERIT

Manager of the Athletics, World's Champion Baseball Team, is Honored in Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—Connie Mack, veteran manager of the world's champion Athletics, has received the $10,000 Bok Award, given annually to the man or woman who, during the preceding 12 months, rendered the most outstanding service to Philadelphia.

The gift, a $10,000 check enclosed in an ivory case, a gold medal and a scroll, was presented last night at a private dinner at which Mack and 50 prominent citizens were guests of the board of trustees of the award.

Mack, who had been in Florida awaiting the beginning of the baseball training season, made a hurried trip from the south to receive the honor, heretofore bestowed upon artists, scientists, educators and philanthropists.

The Presentation Speech.

Charles E. Fox, former District Attorney, made the presentation speech and praised Mack for his years of effort "devoted to the honest, decency and efficiency of the national game."

"For this fine condition," he said, "one man stands out pre-eminently in the whole nation, teacher, inspired leader of his own people, everybody 40 years a player, patient coach, inspirer of youth, clean sportsman and glayer of the game according to rules. He is Connie Mack. His interest in boys and young men, his consideration of his players, his family life, his love and respect for the game—these lifted him in high estate, and with him—the game."

The speaker said the late Mr. Bok himself had assisted in the selection of Mack, and had expressed his gratification to Mack in person after the Athletics' victory in the last world series.

Shares Glory With Players.

Mack was accompanied to the dinner by his son, Connie Jr., but none of the baseball players who carried him to his fourth world series championship last year was present. However, in acknowledging the award the 67-year-old leader of the champions spoke of them—Simmons, Fox, Haas, Miller, Cochrane, Grove, and the rest—as co-workers of his honor.

It was not a great achievement that Mack spoke, but what he hoped for in the years ahead.

In selecting Mack the trustees of the award departed from any precedent. Of the eight men, two of whom are now dead, who were recipients of the award there was not one whose efforts approached in kind those of Connie Mack.

Two of them received the award for their efforts in the field of education, one in music, one in science, and one in the field of athletics.

Previous Winners.

In the order named, the previous winners of the Philadelphia award have been: Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra; Dr. Russell H. Conwell, late president and founder of Temple University; Samuel S. Fleisher, founder of the Graphic Sketch Club; Dr. Charles Custis Harrison, late provost of the University of Pennsylvania and president of the Board of Trustees of the university museum; Samuel Yellin, master worker in metal; Dr. Charles Jackson, professor of ophthalmology and bronchoscopy in the Jefferson medical college and hospital and perfector of the technique for the use of the bronchoscope and its various adaptations; Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, rector of the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge; and Eli Kirk Price, Fairmount Park Commissioner and chairman of the building committee of the Philadelphia art museum on the parkway.

FINED $2700 FOR KILLING

90 ELDER DUCKS ILLEGALLY

Boston Resident Draws Heaviest Penalty Ever Assessed Under U. S. Bird Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The largest fine ever imposed against one person for violation of the Federal migratory bird treaty act—$2700—has been imposed in Federal Court at Portland, Me.

A resident of Boston, Mass., aided by his employees, killed elder ducks in Washington County, Maine. Under the Federal regulations there is no open season on elder ducks. Ninety elder ducks were seized and a criminal information filed. The defendant pleaded guilty and the court imposed the penalty of $25 for each elder duck killed, the fine being $2700, promptly paid.

The only way elder ducks can be taken legally is under both State and Federal permits issued for strictly scientific or propagating purposes.

SWINDLED BY 'DOCTOR' SHE ASKED TO DINNER

Mrs. Morris Marks Finds Checks
She Cashed for Guest Are Worthless.

Mrs. Morris Marks really did not remember meeting a Dr. Lewis while visiting friends in Dallas, Tex., last summer, but recently when a man telephoned her that he was the Dr. Lewis she met there, and that he was in St. Louis for a few days, she felt that courtesy required her to invite him to dinner at her home, 1975A Burd avenue.

Dr. Lewis repeated his visit on several occasions. He would call to cash two checks for him, one for $20, another for $25, and had another one for $20 cashed by Mrs. Leonard Koman, $523A Terry avenue, a friend of Mrs. Marks. He gave Mrs. Marks a check for $12 for the food he consumed at her table and one for $1.65 for the use of her automobile, which he borrowed one afternoon.

Dr. Lewis went away, and the checks came back, marked "no account," by the Dallas bank on which they were drawn. Mrs. Marks asked police to find "Dr. Lewis."

THINKS FIRE-DAMAGED GERMAN LINER CAN BE REMODELED

Captain, After Inspection of Muenchen, Concludes Hull Was Not Affected.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The North German Lloyd liner Muenchen, wrecked by fire after it had docked from Germany, can be raised from the mud of the Hudson River and refitted, officers of the line believe.

Capt. Feddorn Drechsel, the line's marine superintendent, and the liner's deck and engine crews inspected the ship after firemen had extinguished the blaze that caused an estimated damage of more than $3,000,000 and took two lives. Only the superstructure is above water.

Drechsel said he did not believe that explosions had seriously damaged the hull. The crew was prevented by the flooded hatches from examining the lower regions of the stern and from searching for the body of Gustav Francke, third electrician.

Nearly all of the 7000 canaries stored in the forward holds of the ship were alive and chirping and two dogs, caged in a deck kennel just aft of where the fire raged, barked an enthusiastic greeting.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined.

Proprietor and Two Clerks at 2029 S. Broadway Locked in Dressing Room.

The women's clothing store of Mrs. Pearl Blustein at 2029 South Broadway was held up last night by two men, who escaped with $180 and three diamond rings valued at $125. One of the robbers, displaying a revolver, ordered Mrs. Blustein and two clerks, Mrs. Martha Homfeld and Miss Dorothy Leavitt, to hold up their hands while his companion took $115 from the cash register, $35 from Mrs. Homfeld, and the diamond rings from Mrs. Blustein. They locked the women in a dressing room before leaving.

Elmer Hoff, 2609A Florissant avenue, manager of a grocery, struggled with two men, one of them armed, who called at his home last night. He answered their ring of the door bell, and the men inquired for him by name. When he admitted his identity one drew a revolver and ordered him to hold up his hands. Hoff tried to seize it. The men escaped.

Other holdups: George Horn, 2628 Cottage avenue, robbed of $11 by two men who entered his machine as passengers. Don Hartman, attendant in a filling station at 1625 Union Boulevard, and Albert Ludewig, manager of a grocery at 6905 Manchester avenue, $3; Arlie Shannon, robbed of $37 and a $40 diamond ring by two men when he was putting his automobile in a garage at the rear of his home, and John Young, 3517 North Eleventh street, robbed of $1.50 while in an automobile parked near Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

CHEMIST FINDS CHICAGO'S

LICOR 89 PCT. DRINKABLE

Head of City Laboratory Summarizes Results of Analyses of Material Seized in Police Raids.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Dr. Fred O. Tonney, head of the city Health Department laboratory, in summarizing up the results of a five-year study of prohibition liquor, stated yesterday that Chicago's liquor last year was 89.13 per cent drinkable.

The report, Dr. Tonney said, covers chemical analyses of 145 samples taken in police raids since 1925.

The notable percentage is higher than Government figures show, he said, but he considers the police raided wider variety of illegal liquor sources and that his figures give a better idea of what Chicago drinks. In the five years the quality of liquor has improved, he said, due to improvements in bootleggers' methods of brewing and distillation.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN AUTO PRODUCTION

Reserve Board Reports Gain in Several Industries but Can't Say Whether It Is General.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Production of automobiles, which in December was the smallest of any month in seven years, increased in the last few weeks.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday in its monthly bulletin reviewing business and financial conditions. Large production of automobiles in the earlier part of last year was sufficient to meet the later demand, with a consequent falling off in production.

The board said the decline in general production of the country, which began in the third quarter of 1929 and continued to the end of the year, appeared to have been considerably greater in extent than that of 1927.

"Since the turn of the year there has been an increase in activity in several lines of industry," the review said, "but it is too early to determine whether this increase has been general throughout the various lines of industry."

In its review of credit conditions, the board found an easing of the situation due chiefly to seasonal developments. The return flow of currency from circulation after the Christmas holidays enabled the Federal Reserve member banks further to reduce their indebtedness to reserve banks to $400,000,000, the lowest level in two years.

Employment in manufacturing industries continued to decline in the last month of the year somewhat more than the usual seasonal amount, with the result that the actual level of factory employment at the middle of December was down from the high level of last September by about 8 per cent," the bulletin said.

In December, November to December in the number of employees was shown by almost all manufacturing industries. In several of the important industries the number of employees in the middle of December, 1929, was as low or lower than the lowest point in 1927; this was true of industries producing iron and steel, automobiles and rubber tires and a considerable group of other industries.

The board added that in the machinery, chemical, refined petroleum, paper and printing industries the employment was considerably above the lowest point of 1927. The general level of wholesale prices showed little change in December.

To Try for New Auto Speed Record

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Official sanctioning of an attempt by Kieselhorst, British driver, to set the automobile speed record of 331.447 miles an hour, made by Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, was issued today by the contest board of the American Automobile Association. The board announced it had been notified that Don planned to sail for the United States in 10 days, arriving at Daytona Beach, Fla., about March 1, and making his attempt between March 15 and March 30.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—France and Japan today made public statements of their positions at the naval conference, thus complementing the British and American naval pronouncements made public last week.

The statement on French naval tonnage disclosed that France is willing to accept a naval program running to Dec. 31, 1936, by which its fleet would aggregate 724,479 tons.

This program would mean that France would build 24,000 tons between 1930 and 1935, of which 12,000 tons would be for land forces, their mount being down to 10,000 tons. The French declared their program found conviction that armed conflict between France and the United States and Britain is unthinkable, that the program is a strictly defensive one in conformity with international agreements, particularly the Briand-Kellogg pact.

TOKIO FOR HALT ON BATTLESHIPS

Also Ready to Reduce Tonnage of Capital Vessels to 25,000 Tons With Maximum Guns of 14 Inches.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 12.—France and Japan today made public statements of their positions at the naval conference, thus complementing the British and American naval pronouncements made public last week.

The statement on French naval tonnage disclosed that France is willing to accept a naval program running to Dec. 31, 1936, by which its fleet would aggregate 724,479 tons.

This program would mean that France would build 240,000 tons between 1930 and 1936, of which it was stated, 158,800 tons would represent replacements.

The French declared their profound conviction that armed conflict between France and the United States and the British Empire is unthinkable and that her program is a strictly defensive one in conformity with international agreements, particularly the London Naval pact.

Crucial Japan's Big Point.

The Japanese statement, which failed to mention specifically her demand for a 70 per cent heavy cruiser ratio with the United States, in general agreed with the previous British and American announcements. The statement said Japan was ready to accept a hold-over in battleship construction until 1936. So far as heavy cruisers are concerned, the Japanese statement implied that they "desire to maintain the minimum force sufficient for the needs of national defense, taking into consideration the forces possessed by other Powers."

The only country now which has not issued a formal statement at the conference on its aims is Italy.
It was made clear at Italian headquarters that no such statement could be expected, inasmuch as Italy felt she had clearly set forth her position in demanding parity with any other Continental Power.
So far as reductions are concerned,
Italy is willing to go as low as 160,000 tons provided other Continental Powers do likewise.

The French Program.

The French fleet, under the proposals announced today, would be divided as follows: Capital ships, ranging under the Washington substitution rules, 156,466 tons; capital ships not under the Washington arrangement, 52,791; cruisers of 18,000 tons, 100,000 tons; all cruisers mounting guns with a caliber of more than eight inches, 24,529 tons; light ships (cruisers mounting guns with a caliber of eight inches or under), destroyers, torpedo boats, etc., 258,597; aircraft carriers, 32,146, and submarines, 9,629.

Under this program France would build 240,000 tons between 1930 and 1936.

Or the 43,200 tons would represent a complementary building of 19,500 tons of replacement ships covering French losses during the war.

The French understand that under this plan the displacement of capital ships would run between 25,000 and 25,000 tons.

The Japanese also expressed a willingness to reduce the tonnage of battleships to 25,000 tons and to reduce the maximum caliber of guns to 14 inches.

The statement said that Japan was ready to agree to the prolongation of the life of battleships from 20 years to 25 years.

No Mention of Cruiser Ratio.

The Japanese generally agreed with the previous British and American announcements but, to the surprise of the other delegations failed to make any mention of their demands on the United States for a 70 per cent heavy cruiser ratio.

The Japanese viewpoint.

Japan yesterday reiterated its demand for a 70 per cent cruiser ratio with the navies of Great Britain and the United States.

on Senator Reed, who is speaking

British and American Naval Experts at London Clash Over Limitations on Small Cruisers

Dispute, Rooted in Same Difference Which Wrecked Geneva Parley, Hinges on Gun Calibre and Tonnage.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1930, by the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A difference which appears on its face susceptible of adjustment but which contains serious trouble-making possibilities has arisen between the British and American naval experts at the London conference. The question has been referred to the heads of the delegations after a long and inconclusive discussion in the so-called committee of the whole. In this controversy the American experts are supported by French naval opinion, while the British view is shared by the Japanese.

The British Contention.

The British, on the other hand, desire that the tonnage limit for smaller vessels should be fixed at about 6000 or 7000 tons. They have proposed, moreover, that only a fixed proportion of small cruisers should be permitted to reach even this limit. Acceptance of the British contention manifestly would circumscribe the latitude which our experts have with yielding the principle urged at Geneva. The American position is that conference was against any division of cruisers into classes.

The present opposition of our experts to limitation on the size of six-inch gun ships does not square precisely with the statement of the American program issued last week and renewed in discussions of the committee of the whole, in which the categories should be limited in respect both to gun caliber and tonnage.

Problem Wrecked Geneva Policy.

The controversy is rooted in the same difference which wrecked the Geneva conference, the difference namely being a British desire for small cruisers and armed with large guns. Having seen the memorandum of the American experts, the British experts have decided to submit their own proposal.

At present we have no cruisers between the Pensacola class of 10,000 tons with eight-inch guns and the Omaha type, of 7000 tons with six-inch guns. Thus, he made a distinction between the classes, based on size and gun caliber. He did not, however, specify figures and thus the way was left open for the experts to ask for "small" ships removed infinitesimally from size from the large 10,000-ton division.

Prison Guards.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
YOUR recent editorial entitled "For Better Prison Personnel" was keenly appreciated by the writer, who happens to know something about this subject.

Fortunately, former Warden Groome of the Eastern penitentiary, Philadelphia, was given a free hand to eliminate incompetents at that institution.

Most wardens of state prisons have to shoulder this burden and put up with it. If the warden is a reliable man, the dishonest, inefficient guards will work against him. If he is easy-going, a semi-thimblet or worse, the prisoners get the upper hand.

Another blot on prison management is that a warden has to depend upon convict labor in his household, where every act and word uttered is broadcast via the prison grapevine to the other inmates of the institution.

The pay of a prison guard is so small that you can't get your men with intelligent reasoning to accept it. Consequently the warden is hampered by guards with a low rate of intelligence, some who take the job to make what they can get dishonestly or old guards who have outlived their usefulness for a position that requires great mental alertness and physical strength.

Of the many phases discussed regarding the Canon City riot, the fact that one of the guards killed was over 70 years old, and several over 65, was lighted upon.

It seems heartless to dismiss a man on account of his age, but after what happened at Canon City, wouldn't it have been the wisest thing to do? Perhaps Colorado could have pensioned guards who had outlived their usefulness for such a calling, she would not have to spend the money for new buildings now.

If guards are pensioned, they would be pensioned after a certain length of service; they would be more likely to be honest than under the present system, not knowing how long the job is going to last. I don't hesitate to say that some of them would sell the lives of their fellow guards for a $5 bill.

Salaries of prison guards should be increased so as to attract the type of men that Warden Groome selected for his institution; namely, men who had served under military and naval discipline.

CACOETHES SCRIBENDI.

Quarry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
WITH all the drastic laws now in existence and being proposed, would it not be wise to issue an edict to build no more apartment buildings or houses of any kind and divert all such funds to building jails throughout the country for our free American people?

J. J.

Policemen and Common Sense.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
ON the afternoon of Feb. 6, the driver of our truck was crossing the Jefferson avenue viaduct, going north. After crossing the viaduct, the driver of a car behind him "bonked" his horn continually, but our driver could not pull out of his way because cars were parked on the right side of the avenue. Finally, able to pull out to the right, the driver of the car behind him who happened to be a policeman (off duty) driving his own car, placed him under arrest for "blocking traffic." And yet this policeman could have at any time passed him on the left side, without interference. Our driver was moving at the rate of 20 miles an hour at all times. The next day we lost two hours apiece explaining to the police how this had happened and the driver was discharged without fine or costs. We often read articles in the newspapers criticizing people who knock the police, yet here was an absolute, nonsensical charge placed against a man who had been in our employ for 10 years, driving a big heavy truck, and never once have we had a complaint against him. And never have we been arrested for traffic violation. A pretty good record. I would like to know if the greatest qualification policemen should have is "common sense," and if they used common sense they would eliminate many criticisms and the public would kindly reward them, and would co-operate with them.

MANUFACTURER.

The Auto Horn Noise.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
FOR many years ago the only street noises that reached the upper levels of our office buildings were the clattering of dry horses and the rumbling of street cars. The truck horses have departed and the murmur of the street cars has sunk into insignificance, but we have two new noises—the policeman's whistle and the auto horn. The sound of the traffic cop's signal gives us a sense of security. It is heard only during the busy parts of the day and then at intervals. It bothers us neither on the street nor in the buildings.

The auto horn signal, whistle or what not is the real nuisance in downtown St. Louis and is doubly offensive because unnecessary. The horn-blowing driver is decreasing in numbers each year, but there is no need for anyone to sound an auto signal in the congested districts.

H. E. WIEDEMANN.

THE VALUATION SCANDAL.

It is not so much his political activities as the valuation scandal that has arisen to plague Mr. Hughes. The Post-Dispatch said at the outset that the wisdom of his appointment would turn upon this issue, and a considerable element in the Senate has taken the position that he is already committed to the majority opinion.

This accounts for the Senate's delay in confirming Mr. Hughes as Chief Justice, as it accounts for the growing volume and intensity of the opposition to him. The fact that he left the Supreme bench to run for office and is now returning to it justifies the objection that if this sort of thing occurred often the Supreme Court would become a political football. Nevertheless, it is the feeling that he is upon the side of predatory wealth in the valuation that accounts for the remarkable spectacle of so close to Mr. Hoover as Senator Borah bitterly denouncing the appointment. Long overdue, and without warning, the valuation storm has struck with the violence of a hurricane.

The one point of danger in our Pacific possessions is the Philippine Islands. It is admitted by every military expert who has given the subject thought that we cannot defend the Philippines against attack by a naval Power in the Orient like Japan. With our naval base at Cavite and powerful army defenses on Corregidor we could hold the harbor of Manila, but nothing else, and no American fleet may safely be sent to the relief of the islands. The only deterrent from attack is the fear of the war with the United States which would inevitably follow. That would be fatal to Japan in the long run.

While there is no ground for fear of a war with Japan or any other Power in the Far East, the point of danger has been a prolific source of jingo scares and arguments for a strong American Navy; in fact, it is the principal cause of big cruiser programs. On the other hand, our naval forces at Manila have influenced Japan's naval plans. The great naval base at Singapore which the British are constructing affects Japan's naval policy and indirectly ours, on account of the Philippines.

Another aspect of the subject arises from the increasing pressure in the Philippines and here in favor of granting the islands independence now or in the near future. The withdrawal of the United States from the Philippines would disturb the existing political balance in the Orient. Under the American flag, with American protection and guidance, the Philippines are out of the turmoil of Oriental politics, but with a new independent nation created under the government of the Filipinos, no one knows precisely what may happen. The Filipino Government, because of incapacity and lack of unity, may fall into debt and entanglements with other nations. The Archipelago is rich in natural resources and a temptation to greed from every direction. The islands might be a new source of jealousies and fears.

Neutralization would modify the effect of our withdrawal.

Australia, bitterly opposed to our abandoning the Philippines because of antagonism to and fear of the Japanese, would be reconciled by the creation of a buffer state. The effect would be beneficial throughout the Orient.

The Filipinos in the event of independence would be greatly benefited. They could not be confronted with the problem of national defenses, which would be a heavy burden on their available governmental resources. They could devote their energies and resources to internal development without fear of external aggression.

Altogether, the suggestion to neutralize the Philippines by a treaty between Japan and the United States is fruitful. It has beneficial possibilities for arms limitation and peace.

THE TRIBUNE'S TOM-TOM.

William B. Shearer, whom the shipbuilders sent as an observer to the Geneva conference, is not present at London, but the Chicago Tribune is now thumping the "big bass drum" with a good deal of Shearer's virtuous.

We delegates to the party, the Tribune thinks, are mere putty in the hands of those tricky foreigners, especially the perfidious Britons. We are being out-talked, out-traded and out-generalized, and though it doesn't say so, one can easily see that the blush of shame is mantling the Tribune's pugnacious brow.

Neutralization would modify the effect of our withdrawal.

Australia, bitterly opposed to our abandoning the Philippines because of antagonism to and fear of the Japanese, would be reconciled by the creation of a buffer state. The effect would be beneficial throughout the Orient.

Altogether, the suggestion to neutralize the Philippines by a treaty between Japan and the United States is fruitful. It has beneficial possibilities for arms limitation and peace.

Lady Astor may have been a bit fusible in her compliment that the American envoys are "the ablest delegation the United States has ever sent anywhere," but they are all men who have gone pretty far. Stimson and Adams of the Cabinet, Robinson and Reed of the Senate and Dwight Morrow are surely capable of giving a good account of themselves in any debate or intellectual contest. And nobody with any concern for his own reputation would seriously question the patriotism of any of these men. But as the Tribune sees it, our representatives are buying gold bricks at fancy prices while MacDonald, Tardieu, Grandi and the wily Japs all sing in their several accents, "For he's a jolly good fellow."

As the GANGSTERS LEAVE CHICAGO.

Following Chicago's week-end offensive against gangsters and gun-toters, Acting Detective Chief Egan said:

"We've got 'em on the run. Most of them are now in town, gone to places they think they'll get a better reception.

We presume the affluent members of Chicago's gang aristocracy were not much disturbed by the Tribune's campaign. It is the time of year when they leave for the fashionable winter resorts, anyway, and no doubt by this time they are luxuriating in the sunshine on the Florida coast and at Agua Caliente.

But what interests us is what happened to the remainder who left Chicago? If, by any chance, some of them think they will get a better reception in St. Louis, we trust Chief Gerk and his men will be careful to see that their expectations are realized. That is to say, we trust their reception will be better, in the sense of being hotter, than Chicago's.

MAYOR MILLER AT MIAMI.

Mayor Miller is taking a vacation in Florida, and we learn from the Miami Herald that under his leadership "St. Louis has successfully resisted efforts of the Public Service Corporation to establish 10-cent street car fares."

Verily, the prophet is not without honor save in his own country. As a matter of fact, we have 10-cent street car fares in St. Louis. Under the new arrangement by which commutation books for 12 rides are increased from 99 cents to $1, the straight 10-cent fare has risen from 40 to 45 per cent of the whole. Worse than that, even, we have 5-cent children's fares.

However, the Post-Dispatch has often said Mayor Miller how he can deserve the credit which the Herald and other newspapers would gladly give him for protecting the people of St. Louis from exorbitant street car fares. He can do it by standing for home rule over service and fares, and putting an end to the franchises which deliver us into the hands of high finance. Because it has franchises, and only because it has franchises, the local street car company has a valuation under decisions of the United States Supreme Court which exceeds by $14,000,000 what is paid for the property. It is entitled under the law to a fair earning upon that exorbitant figure, and its efforts to get that earning have resulted in the present high fares.

The general procedure is for a belligerent warship to ascertain by visit whether a merchantman is enemy or neutral. If the latter, the vessel is searched for contraband. It is possible a submarine commander could comply with the procedure up to this point. If, however, a merchantman is found guilty of unequal conduct in carrying contraband, the rules of international law require the capturing vessel to order the ship to port, where prior court proceedings may be begun. That is an impossible assignment for the submarine.

As a matter of fact, in the last war the rules of visit, search and seizure were violated even by allied warships on the ground that, in naval warfare where submarines are engaged, it is often impracticable to carry out search at sea and even visit is not always attempted. A usual practice in the World War was for American and allied commanders merely to order captured merchantmen to proceed to certain ports. If big cruisers find it impossible to follow the elaborate ritual of international sea law, how can the submarine be expected to do so?

The submarine is inevitably the weapon of the nation whose navy is inferior or nonexistent. It was the means in the last war by which the Germans ran the tight allied blockade. That blockade estopped German submarine commanders from following the peace.

CAN THE SUBMARINE BE HUMANIZED?

Mr. Stimson announced yesterday an agreement by the five Powers "to restrict the use of the submarine against merchant ships to the same rules which are applied to surface vessels." Undoubtedly, since countries like France will not agree to the submarine abolition, it is praiseworthy that attempts should be made to humanize their use. However, because of the physical nature of submarines in comparison with the large merchant vessels that sail the seas today, it is exceedingly difficult to understand how a submarine commander, in time of war, could if he would, observe existing rules.

The general procedure is for a belligerent warship

Of Making Many Books JOHN G NEIHARDT

Explains Much

America and England. By Nichols Roosevelt. (Jonathan Cope & Harrison Smith, N. Y.) One of a great majority of those who read the daily news from the London naval conference are vaguely under the impression that the real problem at issue is concerned with no more than the reduction and just apportioning of available sea power in the interest of world peace. That is, of course, the immediate superficial aspect of the problem, and if the real power in this world is of purely political nature, then the real problem involved might be no more than it must seem to most casual readers.

But the real power in this world is economic, and if this were generally realized there might be less faith in apparently amicable international agreements, but there might also be a better and perhaps a saving conception of the real dangers of the apparent decline of Great Britain. On the other side, lack of information in available form has prevented a proper understanding of the commercial and financial factors which are so important in determining the future of the United States and Britain. For this reason I have stressed the economic fundamentals which are the base of industrialism, the surplus production of which determines the power of a nation's commerce by the concentration of ships on a world scale, and of shipping. These matters affect naval power and the freedom of the seas which, in turn, color diplomatic relations."

Here we have no grandiloquent discussion of symptoms—which seems to be the usual thing in statesmanlike utterances—as the fundamental problem might be just what it was before the conference, though the danger inherent in the problem might be somewhat removed in time.

If four or five burly savages, weary of making bigger and better clubs for the cracking of each other's skulls, could, after much adroit jockeying, agree upon club limitations as to size, weight and number of spikes, the reason for cracking each other's skulls might conceivably remain unaffected.

Furthermore, perhaps, the four or five lusty club-wielders could not be blamed for ignoring the basic reason for head-cracking in big or little clubs, studded with many, if not no spikes. Perhaps the real problem could not possibly be attacked by the whole complex structure of their life scheme, and all of them might be easily convinced of the essential goodness, even the holiness, of that scheme, for self-interest is a powerful convincer and sanctifier.

Those who may wonder what really is behind all the eager jockeying in London, and to what extent the high-sounding peace talk of our day actually touches the vital problems at issue in our troubled world, would do well to read Nichols Roosevelt's "America and England." Not that this is the only work well calculated to inform us on that subject, but because it happens to be the most recent and evidently written with knowledge and candor and without rancor.

The author's purpose is to lift the whole subject of international rivalry—and especially that which seems to be growing stronger between our country and the British Empire—out of the atmosphere of a seat:

"It seems to me that my books are about: What is the worst that the world can do to you, and what are the last resources one has to oppose it. In other words: When a human being is made to bear more than human beings can bear, what then? The answer is: 'A bridge'—the bridge, then 'nervous breakdowns,' then 'desperation.' The bridge' asked the question whether the intuition that lies behind love was sufficient to justify the desperation of living. The woman of Andros' asks whether Paganism had any solution for the hopeful inquiring sufferer and—by anticipation—whether the handful of maxims about living that entered the world with the message of Christ were sufficient to guide one through the maze of experience."

Washington-St. Louis Debate

Teams to Meet in Second of Series Tomorrow.

Delegations teams of St. Louis and Washington universities will meet tomorrow night in January Hall, Washington University, in the second of three debates for the foreshadowing championship of the city.

The tall, lanky Brock of Tennessee paces up and down in the back of the chamber, now and then darting in and out of the Democratic cloakroom.

Hanfield of West Virginia goes in quest of a tariff expert on the far side of the chamber, and earnestly asks him several questions. His colleague, Goff, confers with Loeffler, doorkeeper for the Republicans.

Keen of New Jersey sits with his back to La Follette, stroking his mustache and gazing blankly at the galleries.

Townsend of Delaware directs his attention to a pile of papers on his desk, as does Blaine, La Follette's colleague.

Tom Walsh of Montana, Democratic leader during Joe Robinson's absence in London, appears at the door of the Democratic cloakroom, listens a few minutes, then goes to his desk and sits down. Smoot steps casually into the chamber and takes a seat.

In a corner on the Democratic side, Pat Harrison and Sheppard of Texas talk earnestly. Smoot turns to his tariff expert and they confer. Swanson of Virginia goes in his appearance at a desk near Walsh and sits the two converse.

Wesley Jones of Washington, wearing a light gray suit and a flaming red tie, enters, deposits his brief case on his desk and disappears into the Republican cloakroom. Goff and Hatfield go into conference and are joined by Metcalf of Rhode Island, who stands with an arm about the shoulders of each.

Harrison and Swanson go into a huddle. Smith of South Carolina comes in, says something to Townsend, disappears in the cloakroom and returns reading a paper.

The tall, lanky starts pacing in back of the chamber. Pat Hanfield confers with Norman of North Carolina. Tullis of New Mexico drifts in with a bored air and sits at his desk. Nye of North Dakota enters and sits near La Follette.

Brock and Caraway of Arkansas, having met in the Democratic cloakroom, enter laughing. A page goes to Walsh's desk and he leaves the chamber. Another approaches Norris with a card from someone who wishes to see him, but he shakes his head vigorously and continues to listen.

And so on.

TEXTS OF NAVAL STATEMENTS BY JAPAN AND FRANCE

posed for battleships until 1924. France would be willing to accept such a holiday up to a total of 165,000 tons.

work of the conference, to specify its position as follows. With a view to accuracy in the present note, we should mention that each tonnage is put down in British tons.

When compared to the pre-war period, France has considerably reduced naval forces. In 1914 she possessed a fleet of 964,900 tons in service or laid down, plus 173,000 tons authorized or building, a total of 1,138,900 tons. Today, either in service, in building or authorized, she possesses a fleet of 681,808 tons, namely, 457,192 tons less.

On the other hand, of all the great naval nations, France in 1928 was the only one to have a naval budget inferior to the pre-war budget; it came to 13 per cent.

Lastly, the naval program adopted in 1924 by the French Government and carried out since then by annual shares represents in addition, when compared with the situation in 1919, a reduction of 338,000 tons, a reduction with all the more meaning as the France-Britain agreement concerning the distribution of fleet existing in 1914 is no longer in force.

Building Program Cut Down.

"It may, therefore, be said that in the same spirit as Great Britain and without waiting for a possible decision of the present conference, France has already and in considerable measure cut down her building program.

"The state of the French fleet on the first of January, 1929, including ships in service, building or authorized, can be summed up as follows: Capital ships coming under the Washington substitution rules, 132,494 tons; capital ships not under the Washington substitution rules, 52,751; cruisers of 10,000 tons (Washington), 70,000; old cruisers, with guns of caliber over eight inches, 65,362; cruisers, destroyers, torpedo boats and a number of special ships (one cruiser, training ship, two mine-layers, etc.), 228,897; aircraft and seaplane carriers, 32,146; submarines, 97,875. Total, 681,808 tons.

"Concerning the above figures, it must be noted that the capital ships not coming under the Washington rules and their dreadnaught ships in service since 1911 that France was authorized to keep outside of the preceding rules.

"The state of the French fleet on the first of January, 1920, compared to the first of August, 1914, shows the following differences: Capital ships, 550,860 less; cruisers and torpedo boats, no change; aircraft carriers, 32,146 more; submarines, 62,323 more. Total, 457,000 less.

Nothing Built in Six Years.

"It should be further pointed out that all the navies in the world that France has built the only ones not to build anything from 1914 to 1920, when her dockyards were busy during the whole war making ammunition for France and her Allies. That is the reason why she has been obliged to keep in active service beyond the age limit an important tonnage of old ships, especially battleships and cruisers, as proposed by the communiques published by the American and British delegations. The Powers represented at the conference were to take as the ground for their agreement establishment of a building program running from 1920 to 1926. The French delegation would be willing to accept this method, with the double reserve that the four other Powers would do the same and the French Parliament would ratify her decision.

"The French fleet on the thirty-first of December, 1936, might then be made up as follows: Capital ships, not under the Washington substitution rules, 152,465; capital ships, under the Washington substitution rules, 52,731; cruisers of 10,000 tons, 100,000; old cruisers, mounting to guns with a caliber over eight inches, 24,850; light ships (cruisers mounting guns with a caliber of six inches or under, destroyers, torpedo boats, etc.), 258,897; aircraft carriers, 32,146; submarines, 99,623. Total, 721,471 tons.

1926 Tons of Replacement.

"Concerning that second table, the following remarks should be made:

1. From 1920-1926, France would build 240,000 tons. Out of those 240,000 tons, 42,200 would represent complimentary building and 198,800 tons of replacement. In other words, from 1920 to 1926, France would give up 82 per cent of her effort to replacing obsolete ships and 18 per cent to complimentary building.

2. The tonnage laid down before 1920 and not in service till the 31st of December, 1926, is compensated by scrapping ton for ton of equal tonnage of obsolete ships.

3. As concerns capital ships, it has been understood displacement would run between 20,000 and 25,000 tons.

4. As in the preceding table, it has been supposed that special ships be distributed among the classes mentioned in the table.

Two General Observations.

Outside of these special remarks the French delegation wish to introduce some observations of a general character:

1. As concerns capital ships, France has not thus far availed herself of the right given her by the Washington treaty of building before the conference the 70,000 tons in replacement of the France, which disappeared in 1922, of the Jean Bart and Courbet, whose substituting tonnage might have been laid down as soon as 1927. France is now obliged, owing to the recent forthcoming of a new type of battleship to make use of part of that credit of 70,000 tons before the end of 1928, and she might be compelled to use it completely during the same period should new ships of the same type happen to be built. Therefore, in case a naval holiday should be pro-as cruisers, though better described as "pocket battleships," is largely in the development of details. To begin with, there is not a rivet to them. The plates will be entirely soldered, thus saving 14 per cent in weight, which is added to their speed. Thus a ship that under rivet construction would have a displacement of 11,000 to 12,000 tons has a displacement of only 10,000. The method of structure is also new, so that everything in the ship, from keel to cockpits, is part of the armor structure itself.

Careful Study of Strain.
Strain has been studied to a point where the exact size of the gun that can carry is figured. In fact, the limitation on guns is not in relation to tonnage according to the usual method of calculating the batteries a vessel can carry—but in relation to the accuracy of gun fire. It is possible to figure strain until it could be possible to put a "Big Bertha" on a battleship, it is explained, but this would be of no use in naval wars on account of inability to get accurate gun fire at over 20,000 yards. The Germans, however, are experimenting with guns and it is possible that the possibilities for batteries to be figured will be greater than now.

Thus a ship that under rivet construction is not under limitation as to the elevation of guns.

15 - YEAR REVENUES

National Travelers' Aid Association.

In the 15 years, the Mullanphy Board's revenue, including direct income from the fund and the proceeds of some sales of real estate, was $1,041,715. The secretaries said. In this period, cash payments for actual relief cases amounted to $60,804, and salaries in the travelers' aid department, paid to social workers for aid and counsel to travelers, were $156,937. The total of disbursements in the 15-year period, including relief, salaries, taxes and maintenance of property, was $1,022,048, leaving somewhat less than $20,000 to be added to the principal of the fund. Samuel J. Riddle, president of the Mullanphy Board, of which he has been a member since 1912, testified that there were "always plenty of other people" to be aided from the fund. He said the recipients of aid included the "emigrants" whom Mullanphy mentioned especially in his will; but that not many of them were going to points west of St. Louis. A good many of them, he said, have been bound for the polygamous industrial communities of St. Louis' East Side, particularly for Granite City.

The immigration laws require new arrivals to have enough money to keep them from becoming public charges, have kept out the destitute immigrants of Mullanphy's time, he said. Also, most immigrants now have railroad transportation to their final destination in this country, and are not merely dumped at New York or other ports of entry. But these travelers still need aid and information, he said, such as are furnished by the board's workers.

The family tree of collateral relatives of Bryan Mullanphy, prepared by Mrs. Nettie Harvey Beauvoir, archivist of the Missouri Historical Society, and one of the

WOMAN TO BE HANGED; CLEMENCY REFUSED

Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52, to Be First of Her Sex Executed in Arizona.

By the Associated Press
PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 13.—Death on the gallows seems inevitable for Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52-year-old housekeeper. The State Board of Pardons and Paroles yesterday denied her petition for clemency.

Nine days hence, Feb. 21, she will be hanged at the Arizona State prison at Florence for the murder three years ago of her employer, A. J. Mathis, aged recluse of Tucson, Ariz., the first woman in Arizona criminal annals to be executed.

The board's decision was rendered with one dissenting vote, that of C. O. Case, who recommended clemency. He was opposed by Attorney-General K. Berry Peterson and L. B. Orme, board chairman.

Appealed at the last moment to the woman's appeal was a brief letter she received at the prison signed "Jack," absolving her of blame for the crime. The writer said that Mrs. Dugan "had nothing to do with it" and that he "had to hit old man Mathis" when he came "at me with a knife and would have killed me if I had not struck him." The writer said he was attempting to gather "some more evidence."

No cognizance of the letter was taken by the board, which pointed out that Mrs. Dugan had received similar letters in the past and that investigation of the missives had produced nothing to mitigate the evidence against her.

The murder charge grew out of Mathis' disappearance from his home in January, 1927. Friends looking for him were told by Mrs. Dugan and a youth named "Jack" who was employed by Mathis, that he had gone to California. Several weeks afterward Mrs. Dugan and the youth disappeared.

Some months later, Mrs. Dugan was arrested in White Plains, N. Y., for stealing Mathis' automobile. She was returned to Tucson and condemned to the death.

Early in 1928, Mathis' body was found in a makeshift grave near his ranch. Mrs. Dugan was charged with the murder, tried and convicted in February, 1928, and was sentenced to death. She has declared throughout her imprisonment that the youth whom she knew only as "Jack" committed the crime and that she ran away with him to Texas. The state alleged she "used to gain possession of Mathis' property."

The youth's trail led police to Amarillo, Tex., and there it was lost. No trace of him has been found since. The last letter Mrs. Dugan received from "Jack" was mailed at the border town of Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico.

Friends looking for him were told by Mrs. Dugan and a youth named "Jack" who was employed by Mathis, that he had gone to California. Several weeks afterward Mrs. Dugan and the youth disappeared.

Some months later, Mrs. Dugan was arrested in White Plains, N. Y., for stealing Mathis' automobile. She was returned to Tucson and condemned to the death.

Early in 1928, Mathis' body was found in a makeshift grave near his ranch. Mrs. Dugan was charged with the murder, tried and convicted in February, 1928, and was sentenced to death. She has declared throughout her imprisonment that the youth whom she knew only as "Jack" committed the crime and that she ran away with him to Texas. The state alleged she "used to gain possession of Mathis' property."

The youth's trail led police to Amarillo, Tex., and there it was lost. No trace of him has been found since. The last letter Mrs. Dugan received from "Jack" was mailed at the border town of Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico.

7 GANG LEADERS AMONG 425 TAKEN IN CHICAGO RAIDS

They Are Found in Room
Behind Cafe Where Two Men Were Reported Slain
Short Time Ago.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Seven gang leaders, found behind the drawn shades of a room in which not long ago two others were murdered, were held to the grand jury today as gunmen.

Altogether, police took 425 prisoners yesterday, bringing their total for five days to more than 2500; but the seven found in the dingy second-floor restaurant were said by police to be the most important of all.

In presenting them at last night's show-up, at which suspects are paraded across a small stage before the victims of recent crimes, Chief of Detectives Egan said: "Their names would grace a penitentiary roster or a hangman's bill of fare. They are of the O'Donnell gang."

Two of them were Myles and Michael O'Donnell, brothers. There is a third and better known O'Donnell, called "Klondyke." There was "Three-Fingered Jack" White, once convicted of murder; George (Red) Barker, known as a labor terrorist and once charged with murder; Mike Quirk, Edward Simek and John O'Connor.

With the seven leaders arrested Frank Ladd, concerning whom police have no previous information. One Freed on Bond.

Five minutes after the arrests, eight lawyers were demanding that the men be promptly booked so that bail could be arranged and the men freed. They were successful only in the case of Myles O'Donnell, who they said was a dying man.

During the questioning a photographer set off a flash light behind him, and O'Donnell fainted. When he revived he said he thought he had been shot. Myles O'Donnell was booked for disorderly conduct and freed under $1500 bond. O'Donnell got a two weeks' continuance today on a disorderly conduct charge.

The room in which the arrests were made is separated by a partition from the cafe. It was here, police said, that two other well-known West Side gangsters, William Clifford and Michael Reilly, were killed. The bodies of Clifford and Reilly were taken to the back yard of Al (Scarface) Capone's home, where they were found.

Police say Clifford and Reilly's deaths were the sequel to the killing in Cicero last year of a man named Vercoe who was shot dead in a saloon when he recited a verse ending "You boot, you coward, you dare not."

O'Donnells Opposed Killing.
The O'Donnells, blaming Clifford and Reilly for the shooting, reprimanded them.

Watchers of the market place, the thinkers, those who outguess and outdistance the field in the race for place say "Hats off to H&K." As introduced by Kinsella, coffee in air-less packages is swiftly changing coffee marketing methods. Imagine meats unchilled; wine uncorked. Natural laws of preservation must be followed. With coffee, only by means of the air-less can, packed under vacuum, can coffee be delivered with all its original undiminished goodness. Its essence is volatile as ether. Fifty per cent vanishes in ten hours! It must be transported in vacuum. Kept safely away from air.

BANKRUPT DEALER QUESTIONED ABOUT TRANSFER OF PROPERTY

Joseph Priluk Testifies He Gave Flat and Tenement to Sons-in-Law.

Joseph Priluk, dry goods merchant at 1416 Bidle street for 18 years, who filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Jan. 4, was questioned in Bankruptcy Court today about the transfer to relatives of properties for which he had agreed to pay $25,000. Herbert F. Hahn, trustee, is seeking to bring them into the estate for creditors.

Priluk's testimony wavered between extreme volubility and the answer, "I don't remember." He said two years ago he turned over to a son-in-law a tenement at 1418 De Fonty street, which he bought for $19,000 five years ago, because it was "too expensive to keep up." Later he added that he considered the transfer wiped out a $2000 debt to the son-in-law, advanced as part of a $5000 down payment. At about the same time, he continued, he turned over to another son-in-law a tenement at 1618 Blair avenue for which he had agreed to pay $3000.

Under questioning, Priluk admitted he had collected the rents on the properties and paid off mortgage notes, turning the balance over to the son-in-law. The latter, he said, paid the taxes.

When Referee Cole asked why he had brought receipted tax bills with him, Priluk replied, "To show I don't own the houses any more."

His schedules show debts of $3225 and assets of $1400.

manded them, saying such unprovoked killings "gave Cicero a bad reputation." When Clifford and Reilly inquired, "Well, what are you going to do about it?" Police declared, they signed their own death warrants.

Barker, arrested last night, was a pal of Clifford and Reilly, and of McElliot and Cawley, who also were assassinated. Police were surprised to find him apparently in the good graces of the O'Donnells. No weapons were found on the seven prisoners, but carcasses hanging, however, contained two weapons. One of the coats fitted Barker. In the pocket of another was found a glove in which were cork tinger tips fitting the stubs of "three-fingered Jack," White's hand.

Myles O'Donnell, tried and acquitted of the murder of Eddie Tanci several years ago, and Kiondyke O'Donnell were in the automobile with William H. McSwiggin when the latter, an assistant State's Attorney, was assassinated, supposedly by members of the Capone gang to which the O'Donnells are opposed.

TWO WANTED IN CLEVELAND. Traced by means of a baby's birth record, two men sought for the killing of a Cleveland policeman and numerous Ohio robbers, also were among those arrested.

The pair, Charles Hannick, alias Hanwick, 22, and George Williams, alias John Long, 64, a noted Illinois convict, were taken by local police assisted by Cleveland officers who had intercepted a letter telling of the birth of a child to Mrs. Hannick.

An examination of local birth records disclosed the address of the Hannicks and the suspect surrendered without resistance. Hannick gave police the address of Williams who was married with Miss Jewell Long, 21, of Sioux City, Iowa. Williams and Williams shot and killed Patrolman Carl Sherman and wounded Sergeant Martin Hoffman, when the police interrupted the pair during an attempted holdup of a garage on the night of March 6. Hannick also confessed that he and Williams held up the Romanian Savings & Loan Co., in Cleveland, April 16, obtaining $400.

Both men announced they would wait for extradition, and are expected to be taken back to Cleveland today. Officers said Mrs. Hannick and Miss Long would be released.

TO DISCUSS STANDARD CHARGES AT AIRPORTS

Committee Also to Consider Code of Field Rules at Meeting Next Week.

Standardization of service and storage charges at airports will be discussed by the Airport Committee of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce at one of 16 meetings to be held next week in connection with the International Aircraft exposition, which will open at The Arena Saturday night.

David Vise, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright Airports Corporation, will preside at the meeting. It is expected that a code of ethics for airport management will be drafted, and a report on a uniform code of airport field rules will be received.

An advertising and sales code for dealers in aircraft fuels and lubricants will be proposed at a meeting of the Fuel Standards Committee of the Aeronautical Chamber, to be held next Thursday. One of the practices which the committee seeks to curb is that of giving away lubricants for special flights.

Work of preparing The Arena for the exposition will be completed Friday at top speed. Among the planes landed in Forest Park and towed into the building yesterday were two special Fokker monoplanes. Both are single-engined ships of the type popular with airline operators. A tri-motored Fokker for demonstration purposes is scheduled to arrive Saturday.

The only flying feature scheduled for the show period will be an attempt by D. S. "Bud" Zimmerman, test pilot for the Scholastic Biplane Co. of Marshall, Mo., to break the world's altitude record for light planes in a Biplane low-wing monoplane. Zimmerman will make the attempt next Wednesday, probably from Lambert-St. Louis Field. Last May Zimmerman reached 20,820 feet in a plane of the same type at Parks Airport.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW***

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper figure, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BANKRUPT DEALER QUESTIONED ABOUT TRANSFER OF PROPERTY

Joseph Priluk Testifies He Gave Flat and Tenement to Sons-In-Law.

Joseph Priluk, dry goods merchant at 1418 Biddle street for 18 years, who filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Jan. 4, was questioned in Bankruptcy Court today about the transfer of his properties from which he had agreed to pay $28,000. Herbert F. Hahn, trustee, seeking to bring them into the estate for creditors.

Priluk's testimony wavered between extreme volubility and the answer, "I don't remember." He said two years ago he turned over to a son-in-law a four-family flat at 4331 De Tonty street, which he bought for $19,000 five years ago, because it was "too expensive to keep up."

After he filed the petition, he considered the transfer wiped out a $2000 debt to the son-in-law, advanced as part of a $5000 down payment. At about the same time, he continued, he turned over to another son-in-law a tenement at 1618 Blair avenue for which he had agreed to pay $9000.

Under questioning he admitted he had collected the rents on the properties and paid off mortgage notes, turning the balance over to the son-in-law. The latter, he said, paid the taxes.

When Referee Coles asked why he had brought received tax bills with him, Priluk replied, "To show I don't own the houses any more."

His schedules show debts of $228 and assets of $1400.

manded them, saying such unprovoked killings "gave Cicero a bad reputation." When Clifford and Reilly inquired, "Well, what are you going to do about it?" Police declared they signed their own death warrants.

Barker, arrested last night, was a pal of Clifford and Reilly, and of McElliott and Cawley, who also were assassinated. Police were surprised to find him apparently in the good graces of the O'Donnells. No weapons were found on the seven gangsters, but overcoats hanging, hasty, contained two weapons. One of the coats fitted Barker. In the pocket of another was found a glove in which a cork finger tips, fitting the stubs of "three fingered Jack" White's hand.

Myles O'Donnell, tried and acquitted of the murder of Eddie Tanci several years ago, and Klondike O'Donnell were in the automobile with William H. McGivigan when the latter, an assistant State's Attorney, was assassinated, supposedly by members of the Capone gang to which the O'Donnells are opposed.

TWO WANTED IN CLEVELAND.

Traced by means of a baby's birth record, two men sought for the killing of a Cleveland policeman and numerous Ohio robbers, also were among those arrested.

The pair, Charles Hannick, alias Hawich, 22, and George Williams, alias John Lord, 64, paroled Illinois convict, were taken by local police assisted by Cleveland officers who had intercepted the pair since the birth of a child to Mrs. Hannick.

An examination of local birth records disclosed the address of the Hannicks and the suspect surrendered without resistance. Hannick gave police the address of Williams who was arrested with Miss Jewell Long, 21, of Sioux City, Ia. Hannick said Williams shot and killed Patrolman Carl Sherman and wounded Sergeant Martin Hoffman with whom the pair attempted holdup of a garage on the night of March 6. Hannick also confessed that he and Williams held up the Rumanian Savings & Loan Co., in Cleveland, April 10, obtaining $4200.

Both men announced they would waive extradition, and are expected to be taken back to Cleveland today. Officers said Mrs. Hannick and Miss Long would be released.

By W. J. McGoogan

Paddy Byrne, goateed of the Kansas City Pla-Mors, completed his last stand of the season in St. Louis last night and departed with little regret, for Paddy had more peculiar goals scored on him at the Winter Garden than there was in any other spot.

Byrne came here for the first time with an remarkable record for stops and had it shattered to smithereens of two games. On a subsequent visit he was the cause of losing a game for his team when the puck hit his skates and bounced into the net for a deciding marker.

Last night the Flyers defeated the Pla-Mors, 4 to 2, and two of the goals scored against Byrne were freakish. The first, a terrific shot from near the ice line, Mooney Jameson hit Paddy's stretched hand and rolled down his arm into the net. Another one cracked him in the ribs as he stooped over, still over his back and into the goal.

That is enough to make any hockey goal tender believe that a certain city is his jinx and Byrne has ample reason to dislike the Winter Garden.

As tough as those two goals were on Paddy's record, they were leavers for the Flyers, for it appeared early in the contest as if they were just going to fight another good losing game as they did Monday night for Kansas City got off in the lead in the first period when McCormick took a pass from Campbell and K. K. Hill with a shot before 10 minutes had passed. This lead was increased to 2 up in the second session when Scott skated down the Flyers' right wing, unbroken, took a pass from Dunfield and flipped the puck into the St. Louis net.

That was all the scoring for the Pla-Mors while the Flyers started to work.

A few minutes after Scott's score, Larry Goyer took the puck from beyond the Kansas City blue line and with a pretty exhibition of stick handling, skated around and through the defense to register the first Flyer goal.

That was the spark which started the fireworks. The crowd went wild and so did the Flyers. Moose Jameson wanted to tie the score and late in the period with Goyer in the penalty box, Moose got the puck and tried to get it away from his own end as possible so he took a long shot at the Pla-Mors' net. It was a terrific wallop. The puck hit Byrne's hand, as already related, and slid into the net for the tying score.

Not Much Pep.

The Pla-Mors didn't have so much pep when the last period started. They felt that the gods were against them and were convinced when Goyer scored his second goal of the evening after seven minutes.

Halderson was in the penalty box at the time, a place where he spent a good portion of the evening, or at least a good portion of the evening when he wasn't sitting or lying on the ice when some Flyer dumped him. The St. Louis outfit settled upon the opportunity and carried the ball into Kansas City territory. Out of a screening play came Goyer and when Byrne dived to clear a shot, Larry retrieved the puck and sent it home.

That was enough to heat Kansas City but a minute later Jameson and Cameron made it doubly sure by scoring again. Cameron taking a pass and driving the puck into Byrne's ribs, whence it went down for 2 minutes.

It was rather a rough game with 10 penalties being assessed. Goyer was put out for 5 minutes because he swung on Ranger's jaw, in an imitation of Primo Carnera. But Ranger had some little thing to do with the argument and was set down for 2 minutes.

For some reason or another the Flyers take particular pleasure in spilling big Slim Halderson. Mon-

Ed Walsh, the famous old White Sox pitcher, now has two sons, both hurlers, in the American League. ## HOCKEY CLUB LEASES ARENA FOR FIVE YEARS

The St. Louis Flyers' Professional Hockey Club late yesterday afternoon signed a five-year lease of The Arena, with an option for a renewal for a five-year period.

Under the terms of the lease, the Hockey Club will have use of The Arena for 100 of the 150 days between Nov. 1 and April 1. When The Arena is not being used for hockey games, the Hockey Club will operate the building as a public skating rink.

The lease, signed by William F. Brant, president of the National Exhibition Co. owners of The Arena, provides for a share of annual income of $10,000.

Primo Under Fire

THESE questions have been answered to some extent by Primo's record. Here are a few instances:

Knocked to the floor in his first fight with Stribling, he got up and knocked Stribling down.

When punished by Stribling, he got a second fight at Paris, instead of quitting he became so ferocious that he kept on fighting after the bell. Although Stribling defended himself, he virtually was knocked out by Carnera after the gong had rung. Carnera claiming he did not hear the bell closing the round.

What's in the box?

Primo's record shows that he was not allowed but he was given about 10 minutes to recover and then ordered to resume fighting. He refused and lost on a foul.

The lease calls for the installation of the ice-making machinery, beginning July 1 next.

A new corporation will be formed to take over the Hockey Club franchise next season, Brant and associates announced. They declared that the corporation would give St. Louis hockey fans the popular ice game at low prices, ranging from 75 cents up.

SHURTLEFF FIVE WINS FROM ILLINOIS COLLEGE QUINTET, 50 TO 19

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 13.—The Shurtleff pioneers continued their successful march toward the championship of Little Rock with a 50 to 19 victory over Illinois College of Jacksonville, by the score of 50 to 19.

Starting with the services of Capt. Nelson, the Shurtleff five, composed entirely of freshmen, swept the Illinois quintet off its feet and the half ended, 25 to 9.

This was the tenth conference victory for the pioneers, who are now in first place in the conference. Nicoll was high point man for Shurtleff with 15 points, while Schuster, was high for Illinois with 10.

Day night they sent him down at every opportunity. Last night they made opportunities. The big boy finally became peevish and fought back with the result that he was punished three times in the third period.

In any case, the evidence favors that the belief that Carnera can stand the racket when the fight waxes warm. If he proves to be a game bird, then the rest of the heavies might as well pack up and go home.

Heavyweights Lack Insides?

A few ruffians weighing less than 200 pounds, carried by heavyweights' strength, blow. There have been very few men above 200 pounds who have been known for their ring courage.

That was what makes him the phenomenon he is.

Midday hit a shot into the air and the puck struck Headley over the right eye. It raised a mope but Curly didn't seem to mind it much.

About 2000 persons attended.

The Flyers are scheduled to meet Tulsa next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Winter Garden after which they will not appear at home until March 17 and 18 when they play Tulsa in their final home games of the season.

Jamison plans to have his men practice every other day beginning tomorrow until the next game is played.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Still Unproved?

PRIMO has departed, leaving endless speculation and discussion as to his proper pugilistic classification. You can hear expressed every possible variation of opinion about him ranging from "cheese" to champion. Conservative persons, admitting his really marvelous physique, complain that there is no evidence to show whether he has any defense or whether he can "take it." Those who have seen him have to admit tremendous attacking power.

A little more polish and practice on defense and he will be in shape to test himself. Friends hope he is not hurried into the championship swing too quickly.

Worth Watching

HERE is another angle to it. Carnera's backers or managers might do well to stop his tour before a serious mishap occurs to some of his incompetent opponents. If his managers continue to match him with weaklings and defective, some day they may carry out his opponent's remains. The following night they will be in Grinnell for a scrap with the Pioneers and resting Sunday in Des Moines, will meet Creighton.

The following night they will be in the twenty-eighth heat of the one-sixth mile preliminary and placed third. This, however, did not put the St. Louis flash in the finals. He started with a great burst of speed at the gun and was third to the tape. It was his best race of the meet to date. Alex Hurd, Toronto, took the five-mile, with Jaffee second and Ross, Robinson, Canadian champion, third. Ross dropped out on the twenty-eighth lap.

Frank Frisch, captain of the St. Louis Cardinals and a member of the Lake Placid winter colony was official starter for yesterday's events.

CHAPTER 28.

PENROD IS BROUGHT FORTH.

I was unfortunate for Penrod that Verman felt this renewals and interest in the whereabouts and conduct of the ex-criminal agent of the disbanded agency. Penrod had emerged to the surface, necessarily, as soon as Delta stopped looking over the top of the sawdust box under cover of darkness he had abandoned that refuge, and, for a past hour, strolled upon the ground beneath the windows of the dining room, where he had listened anxiously to the conversation within. Verman, with hands clasped upon his hands, for the first time in many evenings had gone forth for a stroll, and, glancing over the fence, had happened to spy the dark figure under the window. Then, having nothing better to do, he climbed upon the fence and sat there. Amused, he noted being aware that the agency was now wholly obsolete, he had been so ill-inspired as to put the man of such unexceptional and exemplary character as Mr. Dade?"

"Sir?"
"Why on earth did you select such a good-looking man as Mr. Dade to be your criminal?"

PENROD swallowed, and moved uneasily, causing a little show of sawdust to fall upon the floor about him. "Well—" he mumbled, and stopped.

"You speak up!" his father said, in a tone recognizably ominous. "You answer Mr. Jones' question. What made you pick out Mr. Dade?"

"Yes, Penrod," Mr. Jones urged, rising to go. "Why did you?"

Penrod breathed deeply; he had not had an idea in his head.

"Well—" he said at last, desperately. "Well—he acted so in love of my sister Marjorie I thought there must be something to it."

"Yes, Penrod," Mr. Jones urged, rising to go. "Why did you?"

A FORECAST OF THE SPRING MODE

By the Editor of Vogue

How Smart Lengths
for the New Skirts
Compare With the Styles of Last Summer
mer.

IXTEEN—15—12—6—zero... If you can memorize those numbers, you know all there is about the new skirt-lengths for spring and summer—more, indeed, than many of us need to keep in mind. Vogue says so, and if that isn't complete assurance, what would be?

All the measurements are to be taken from the ground; all differ much from the corresponding figures for last spring and summer that if any of the old dresses survived and came out for a walk, they'd look positively indecent. Every one of the new lengths has its logical place in the season's scheme, and each is practical for its purpose, as well as being smart.

Those Tricky Skirt Lengths

Sixteen inches from the ground is the new sport-length, with plenty of width, for the skirt the best girls stance, the longest stride on a hickory or the most spectacular tennis jump. Fifteen inches is the regulation daytime length—for the suit skirt, the dress that goes shopping in town, even for the afternoon dress if one is a busy person who hops in and out of taxis, rides on subways and elevateds and generally behaves like a rushing young modern with more engagements than time.

Twenty inches is a very smart length, but not one to be included in the average wardrobe; this is for the formal afternoon dress that presupposes a party in one's own house or a chauffeur-driven car to keep a bridge date. To wear such a dress driving a car oneself—not matter how smart the car or how nice the destination—is to do one of those things that the mode considers rank ostentation. Like eating a $2 lunch and leaving a dollar tip. Ladies who come for bridge in a 15-inch frock will look just as well on arrival, no matter how they made the trip—and, to many of them this latter length is clearly indicated in any case by the architecture of their legs. Only the long, slim leg—as a rule—looks well in the 12-inch dress.

And now we'll switch on the lights, for the remaining two skirt-lengths appear only at night. The so-called six-inch is really ankle-length—for dancing. The zero-from-the-floor is the most formal thing in the mode, the dress that touches all round and trails in back as much as one likes. The longer women will wear it to a far greater extent than the shorter.

The older women, who prefer to wear the dress in the evening, will find a marvelous dress for almost any occasion. It gives dignity and distinction. It makes the short look tall, and the gently padded seem positively slim. As all the debutantes wear such dresses with vast enthusiasm, no older woman need put one on with the feeling that it adds nothing but infinite chic.

Exit the Flapping Tails

Each of these dresses except the last is likely to have an even hemline, though a sizeable number of the ankle-length dance frocks dip gently in the back. The 16-inch sport and the 15-for-street must be straight all round, if they don't want to be thought hopelessly bad. The dipping tails we saw in such horrid hundreds this winter, hanging down after last year's coats and flapping around the year before—that's overdone, had a vague inexplicably incurred had as inexplicably been avoided. Neither understood what sin he had committed or not committed; neither understood why punishment was commuted. Definitely they had only the sense of a vast escape.

Sam, again making patterns upon the floor, seemed to be preoccupied with the moving toe of his shoe, while Penrod shook down a little more sawdust and stood gazing at it gloomily. They said nothing whatever.

To Be Continued.
(Copyright, 1920.)

The uneven-hemmed dress was created by Paris only for the afternoons. Vogue never showed one under a coat—smart women never wore them in this manner. Unfortunately, the American manufacturer, always on the alert for something new to sell, seized on the idea and ran amuck with it. American women and girls who knew no better bought it—in every material and color and at every price, particularly those in the lower brackets. The effect was bad in the extreme—so bad, in fact, that it worked its own cure. Vogue believes that it finally killed itself from over-indulgence—and mourners will be conspicuous by their absence.

While all this controversy was going on below stairs, waistlines have been quietly settling into place with more regularity. Today, the waistline is the only line, and the first purchase that carries it in its spring version is bound to be one of the new suits.

This is a Suit Season

SUITS—suits—suits are the thing! In wool, in silk, in linen and even in cotton for the country. Every jacket is fitted, except the boistero—not fitted as our tailors used to fit them, but with the softer and more feminine fitting characteristics of the great dressmakers. There are suits with cuff-length sleeves where the bottom reaches the thumb-line; others with finger-tip length, and some, likely to be belted and boused, that are a frank threepastel blossoms languishing about.

A note of great interest to the feminine public at large—the little chiffon evening jacket that matched its dress, but not willing to give it up unless an equally useful substitute had been found. The new little jacket that fits in front. Vogue considers it a much more graceful and delightful wrap of nothingness than the jacket was at its best, and it dispenses with the last rag of respect for the sports-in-the-evening feeling that culminated in the short skirt and the converted cardigan. For the real evening wrap, until velvet and satin are both smart in the three-quarter length.

Hats Off the Face

ND now—this postscript on accessories, please.... Hats are off the face most definitely. A great many of them are berets, in felt, straw and linen. A great deal of the turned-up-in-front-and-down-in-back sort of thing found among the rest of them. While this is a new trend, it's not new in itself.

Colors in the evening begin—as Paris always does, with black. All the French houses made black dresses all the American importers of note brought them back—but not all the American women by any means will wear them since there is a prejudice over here against black for spring in the evening even greater than that against black in the street at the same time of year. The smartest people will have a black dress.

In Bridging the gap between country and town come the new pastel tweeds, particularly those in grey-blue, flecked with black and white. The other three favored tones are orange-beige and champagne-beige, followed by a lightish green.

For later evening wear, nothing can be said that is quite as attractive as the new tweeds for town. In addition to the new tweeds and the ever-faithful crepe de Chine, one will see plenty of linen—for suits, dresses, scarfs and hats of the very smartest. There will be medium-sized linen hats for shade. Linen suits in actual need are extremely well.

This year there are sleeves that end at three different points between these two extremes, and each is important in its own way.

The polo-shirt sleeve—the one above the elbow—has two separate fields. Chanel originated it for blouses to be worn with silk suits; smart America is taking it up for the all-round little country dress for spectator sports wear. Vogue does not advocate this sleeve for town except under a coat.

The so-called elbow sleeve—that ends in reality just below

WALL STREET MANY STOCKS RECORD NEW 1930 TOPS IN LATE TRADE

U. S. Steel Reaches 189 1-4,
Up 4 3-4 Points, and Highest Level Since the November Break.

CALL MONEY RATE SHOWS ADVANCE

Buying of High-Grade Shares Has Effect on the Market Following an Irregular Period.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Establishment of a new high level since the November break by U. S. Steel common at 189 1-4, up 4 3-4, featured the irregularly higher price movement in today's stock market. Final quotations disclosed a preponderance of net gains, which ran from 1 to nearly 9 points in the active issues, and from 10 to 20 points in a few ordinarily inactive specialties. Early declines of 1 to 8 1/2 points were cut in half, or wiped out, in the late afternoon.

"Bull" operators finally gained the advantage after nearly a week's struggle for control of the price movement. "Bear" traders succeeded in hammering down an assortment of merchandising shares and specialties, sending a few to new low prices for the year, but they were unable to unsettle the general list. Steel and public utility led the advance which finally embraced the railroad shares, which started the day with a reactionary stand.

Steel Above December Peak.
At its high price today, United States Steel was fractionally above the peak reached in the December recovery, and more than 20 points above the price at which stock recently was offered to employees under the corporation's partial payment plan. Vanadium Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube closed 4 1/2 and 6 1/2 points higher, respectively, and Republic showed a net gain of nearly 5 points.

The best prices of the day, as a rule, were registered in the last hour of trading despite the fact that the call money rate was marked up from 4 to 4 1/2 per cent when banks are reported to have called $60,000,000 in loans, presumably to meet mid-month dividend, interest and pay roll payments. Time money also was somewhat firmer, some of the longer dates commanding as high as 5 per cent as against a maximum of 4, yesterday.

Record Price for Tobacco.
Eastman Kodak ran up 12 1/2 points to a new 1930 high at 265. American Machine and Foundry jumped 18 1/2 and Brooklyn Union Gas 8 1/2 and Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Waterloo Shingle, Canadian Pacific, Norfolk & Southern, United States Industrial Alcohol and Air Reduction closed 2 to 7 1/2 points higher. American Tobacco was marked up 2 1/2 points to 28 1/2, the best price in its history.

In odd lot transactions, Hocking Valley soared 20 points. New York & Harlem, Vulcan Detinol, common 34 1/2, and the A stock 12.

Pittsburg Coal and J. I. Case each lost about 6 points net and Gillette Safety Razor, Simonds Co., American Can, John Manville, Houston Oil, Motor Products and Sears Roebuck showed net declines of 1 to 2 1/2 points.

Exchange Market Easier.
Foreign exchanges were easier, with Sterling and Dutch guilders touching new low levels for the year.

A break of about 2 1/2 cents a bushel in wheat futures featured the commodity markets. Corn declined fractionally, and cotton rallied 20 to 50 cents a bushel.

Foreign trade figures for January made an unfavorable comparison with the same month last year, merchandise exports dropping $70,352,860 while imports declined $56,626,900. Otherwise, there was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 17C, 18C and 19C.
